President Returns, Faces Many Important Tasks

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 23.—Crouding and healthy after weeks of seas ashore here today prepared to grapple with a host of intricate foreign and domestic problems.

After a motor swing around the city, and a brief speech of greeting, the chief executive will start an overnight train ride to Washington arriving back at his White House desk tomorrow morning.

One of his first meetings will be with Secretary of State Hull who will give him a comprehensive picture of developments in Europe and Africa and discuss the expected bid from the League of Nations for this country to participate in economic sanctions against Italy.

Mr. Roosevelt together with Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Works Progress Administrator Hopkins and others of his party, spent last night aboard the cruiser Houston.

The cruiser was anchored inside the harbor breakwater, the calm, sheltered water offering a pleasant contrast to the heavy seas which buffeted the ship on the cruise northward.

Always a good sailor, Mr. Roosevelt looks completely rejuvenated by his three weeks cruise which started at San Diego, Cal., on Oct. 2, took him through the Panama Canal, and finally up the Atlantic coastline to this port.

The chief executive stopped for fishing excursions whenever he felt so inclined and his catch outdid his previous efforts by a wide margin. He had daily radio reports to keep him abreast of political developments.

The chief executive's landing at Charleston is regarded as a courteous gesture to Senator "Jimmy" Byrns of this state, one of his chief lieutenants in putting administration legislation through the senate. Byrns faces a hard contest for renomination and re-election next year and the president has been anxious to give him a rep on the back in this strongly Democratic state.

REPAIR BUILDINGS

School, Hospital, Engine House Get Repair.

Six WPA projects, including the completion of the canal recreational development, have been approved and work will be started on them this week, according to an announcement by Vattier Court-right, local field engineer.

WPA plans for the park include repairing of the canal-river levee, installation of piling and a levee gate, construction of a shelter house, bathroom, toilets, and the clearing, grading, and landscaping of a park district 3000 feet by 250 feet. Rustic tables, benches and stone stoves will be constructed on the grounds.

Backed by Public Works

The development was started under FERA and never completed. Since the work FERA stopped a section of the levee opened and the canal water went into the river taking a large supply of stocked fish. The project is sponsored by the state department of public works. About 66 men will be given employment on the project as it gets underway.

The belfry on the High-st school building will be removed and will furnish employment to six men. The project includes installation of a new roof and plastering work.

The interior of Berger hospital will be redecorated and employment will be furnished about nine men. Paint for the project has already been purchased by the city.

Fire Department, Too

Nine men will be furnished employment on the installation of a new floor in the fire department and refinishing of the interior of the apparatus room.

Two road projects were approved. Road No. 117, the Williamsport-Crownover mill road in Perry-twp, started as an FERA project and 65 percent complete, will be ditched, graded and gravelled for a distance of 9-10ths of a mile. The project lists employment for 11 men.

Thompson road, No. 114, Deer-creek-twp, will be repaired for a distance of 806 lineal feet, completing a project started under FERA.

MILLER TO SPEND $40,000 ON PARK

Dance Pavilion, Tavern, Swimming Pool, Cabins Planned By Pickaway-Twp Man; 12 Now Employed at Scippo Park, South On Route 23

Scippo park on Route 23 just south of Circleville, scheduled to be one of the finest recreational centers of its type in the state, is bustling with activity these days.

Work is progressing rapidly on the dance hall and rustic tavern, excavating for the swimming pool will soon be started, and if plans for other features of the park work out properly, the opening date will be in early May.

The dance pavilion is 60 by 60 feet and the structure was formerly the McCallister Flying School airplane hanger from Route 23 near Chillicothe. The hanger will be completely sealed on the inside, elaborately decorated and steam heated.

Rough Log Tavern
The tavern is 46 by 34 feet, entirely constructed of rough hewn oak logs and poplar logs, with steam heating and air conditioning. Practically the entire basement, with the exception of the boiler room, will be decorated and furnished as a rathskeller. Large open fireplaces are being constructed in the basement and on the first floor. All floors will be hardwood.

A large part of the first floor will be used for a dining room and a private dining room will be situated on the second floor. Parts of the first and second floors will be used as a residence by R. R. Spangler, Adelphi.

Mr. Spangler and Cliff Miller, prominent Pickaway-twp farmer, are developing the park at a cost estimated at $40,000.

The tavern will contain sixteen rooms and the architectural work was handled by Vattier Court-right, Circleville.

Big Bathing Pool

The swimming pool will be 70 by 110 feet in size and will have the most modern water purification equipment. The operators plan to drill a deep well for the water supply and pump the water over a falls before it enters the pool. Bathhouses will be of log construction. A 10,000 gallon water tower will be used for the park water system and will be erected within a few weeks.

In addition to the pool, tavern and dance pavilion, the operators have purchased three log cabins, located in Ross-co, all about 100 years old, and will have them moved to the park. These cabins will be placed in picturesque sites along the stream and additional cabins constructed. A rustic bridge will be built across Scippo and the entire park will be landscaped and well lighted. At the front of the park, along the highway, a filling station will be constructed.

At present 12 men are employed at the park and the initial order for concrete was five carloads. Excavating for the pool will be completed this fall and concrete pouring will be started in the early spring.

The pool will be in the front of the park. Next in line will be the tavern and last the dance hall. All are spaced so they can be easily seen from the road.

The park will be given a new name before its opening.

NEW GAS RATE VOTE DELAYED AFTER CONFAB

Amendments Aid Smaller User; Six-Year Contract Discussed

LAST 2 YEARS UP

Gordon Wants Chance to Talk With Citizens.

An amendment to the Ohio Fuel Gas ordinance, offering lower rates to the small consumer, was presented to council by the company Tuesday night and the city's lengthy gas controversy appeared near settlement.

The new rate structure is on a six year basis, the first four years offering the lowest rates.

The four year rate is: $1 for the first 500 cubic feet.

5 1/2 cents per hundred for the next 1,500 cubic feet.

5 cents per hundred for all over 5,000 cubic feet.

The rate for the last two years is: $1 for the first 500 cubic feet.

7 cents per hundred for the next 1,500 cubic feet.

6 cents per hundred for the next 3,000 cubic feet.

5 1/2 cents per hundred for the next 5,000 cubic feet.

5 cents per hundred for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

Vote in Workshop

The amendment was made to the ordinance and it was given a third reading before the city dads. The majority of the members were in favor of the new rates but at the suggestion of Councilman Ben Gordon during recess session the vote was delayed and the meeting adjourned until next Wednesday night.

Mr. Julius Helwage, chairman of council as a committee on the gas situation, recommended the postponement and his motion was seconded by W. M. Reid.

H. M. Jay, district manager of the gas company, reported the new schedule over the six year period will average about 70 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

During the first four years the average will be slightly less than 68 cents. These averages include the $1 charge for the first 500 cubic feet of gas. Eliminating the minimum charge and figuring on the basis of 9,500 cubic feet of gas, councilmen said the rate would figure slightly less than 55 cents per thousand.

Council Briefs

Four residents filed a petition with council Tuesday night asking the extension of Logan-st east about 250 feet.

The petition was presented by A. C. Amspaugh, Clifford, Chester and Robert Starkey. The request was referred to the service committee of council and the city service director.

An ordinance transferring $500 from the gas tax street repair fund to the material fund was approved under suspension of rules. W. M. Justus, service director, reported the money was needed for the purchase of stone and tar for street improvements.

Council ordered L. T. Shaner, safety director, to purchase two traffic lights to be installed at High and Court-sts. and Main and Mingo-sts. The lights are to cost $67.50 each.

Council was told the light recently installed at Main and Mingo-sts was not satisfactory and had been removed.

Lyman Bell, N. Court-st., was granted permission by council to install a new concrete sidewalk on Water-st. beside the new Pure Oil filling station. The grade is too steep for a regular sidewalk. Mr. Bell reported he wanted council's approval before constructing a sidewalk. The service director ordered to give Mr. Bell the grade for the walk.

School, Hospital, Engine House Get Repair.

Six WPA projects, including the completion of the canal recreational development, have been approved and work will be started on them this week, according to an announcement by Vattier Court-right, local field engineer.

WPA plans for the park include repairing of the canal-river levee, installation of piling and a levee gate; construction of shelter house, bathroom and toilets, and the clearing grading and landscaping of a park district 3000 feet by 250 feet. Rustic tables, benches and stone stoves will be constructed on the grounds.

Backed by Public Works

The development was started under FERA and never completed. Since the work FERA stopped a section of the levee opened and the canal water went into the river taking a large supply of stocked fish. The project is sponsored by the state department of public works. About 66 men will be given employment on the project as it gets underway.

The belfry on the High-st school building will be removed and will furnish employment to six men. The project includes installation of a new roof and plastering work. The interior of Berger hospital will be redecorated and employment will be furnished about nine men. Paint for the project has already been purchased by the city.

Fire Department, Too

Nine men will be furnished employment on the installation of a new floor in the fire department and refinishing of the interior of the apparatus room.

Two road projects were approved. Road No. 117, the Williamsport-Crownover mill road in Perry-twp, started as an FERA project and 65 percent complete, will be ditched, graded and graveled for a distance of 9-10ths of a mile. The project lists employment for 11 men.

Thompson road, No. 114, Deer-creek-twp, will be repaired for a distance of 806 lineal feet, completing a project started under FERA.

MILLER TO SPEND $40,000 ON PARK

Dance Pavilion, Tavern, Swimming Pool, Cabins Planned By Pickaway-Twp Man; 12 Now Employed at Scippo Park, South On Route 23

Scippo park on Route 23 just south of Circleville, scheduled to be one of the finest recreational centers of its type in the state, is bustling with activity these days. Work is progressing rapidly on the dance hall and rustic tavern, excavating for the swimming pool will soon be started, and if plans for other features of the park work out properly, the opening date will be in early May.

The dance pavilion is 60 by 60 feet and the structure was formerly the McCallister Flying School airplane hanger from Route 23 near Chillicothe. The hanger will be completely sealed on the inside, elaborately decorated and steam heated.

A large part of the first floor will be used for a dining room and a private dining room will be situated on the second floor. Parts of the first and second floors will be used as a residence by R. R. Spangler, Adelphi.

Mr. Spangler and Cliff Miller, prominent Pickaway-twp farmer, are developing the park at a cost estimated at $40,000.

The tavern will contain sixteen rooms and the architectural work was handled by Vattier Court-right, Circleville.

Big Bathing Pool
The swimming pool will be 70 by 110 feet in size and will have the most modern water purification equipment. The operators plan to drill a deep well for the water supply and pump the water over a falls before it enters the pool. Bathhouses will be of log construction. A 10,000 gallon water tower will be used for the park water system and will be erected within a few weeks.

In addition to the pool, tavern and dance pavilion, the operators have purchased three log cabins, located in Ross-co, all about 100 years old, and will have them moved to the park. These cabins will be placed in picturesque sites along the stream and additional cabins constructed. A rustic bridge will be built across Scippo and the entire park will be landscaped and flood lighted. At the front of the park, along the highway, a filling station will be constructed.

At present 12 men are employed at the park and the initial order for concrete was five carloads. Excavating for the pool will be completed this fall and concrete pouring will be started in the early spring.

The pool will be in the front of the park. Next in line will be the tavern and last the dance hall. All are spaced so they can be easily seen from the road.

The park will be given a new name before its opening.

Names of all presiding judges, judges and clerks for the Nov. 5 election are published on Page 6 of today's Herald.

NEW GAS RATE VOTE DELAYED AFTER CONFAB

Amendments Aid Smaller User; Six-Year Contract Discussed

LAST 2 YEARS UP

Gordon Wants Chance to Talk With Citizens.

An amendment to the Ohio Fuel Gas ordinance, offering lower rates to the small consumer, was presented to council by the company Tuesday night and the city's lengthy gas controversy appeared near settlement.

The new rate structure is on a six year basis, the first four years offering the lowest rates.

The four year rate is: $1 for the first 500 cubic feet.

5 1/2 cents per hundred for the next 4,500 cubic feet.

5 cents per hundred for all over 5,000 cubic feet.

The rate for the last two years is: $1 for the first 500 cubic feet.

7 cents per hundred for the next 1,500 cubic feet.

6 cents per hundred for the next 3,000 cubic feet.

5 1/2 cents per hundred for the next 5,000 cubic feet.

5 cents per hundred for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

Vote Is Withheld

The amendment was made to the ordinance and it was given a third reading before the city dads. The majority of the members were in favor of the new rates but at the suggestion of Councilman Ben Gordon during a recess session the vote was delayed and the meeting adjourned until next Wednesday night. Councilman Julius Helwag, chairman of council as a committee on the gas situation, recommended the postponement and his motion was seconded by W. M. Reid.

H. M. Jay, district manager of the gas company, reported the new schedule over the six year period will average about 70 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

During the first four years the average will be slightly less than 68 cents. These averages include the $1 charge for the first 500 cubic feet of gas. Eliminating the minimum charge and figuring on the basis of 9,500 cubic feet of gas, councilmen said the rate would figure slightly less than 55 cents per thousand.

Can Be Modified
Mr. Jay explained that if con-

Council Briefs

Four residents filed a petition with council Tuesday night asking the extension of Logan-st, east about 250 feet.

The petition was presented by A. C. Amsbaugh, Clifford, Chester and Robert Starkey. The request was referred to the service committee of council and the city service director.

An ordinance transferring $500 from the gas tax street repair fund to the material fund was approved under suspension of rules. W. M. Justis, service director, reported the money was needed for the purchase of stone and tar for street improvements.

Council ordered L. T. Shaner, safety director, to purchase two traffic lights to be installed at High and Court-sts, and Main and Mingo-sts. The lights are to cost $67.50 each.

Council was told the light recently installed at Main and Mingo-sts was not satisfactory and had been removed.

Lyman Bell, N. Court-st, was granted permission by council to install a new concrete stepped sidewalk on Water-st beside the new Pure Oil filling station. The grade is too steep for a regular sidewalk. Mr. Bell reported, and he wanted council's approval before constructing a sidewalk with steps. The service director was ordered to give Mr. Bell the proper grade for the walk.

This Menu Lends Atmosphere To The Halloween Party

Halloween is a grand occasion for having a party. Such an event should be built around the time-honored customs of the day. Even your menu should carry out the Halloween atmosphere.

For a menu that is unusual from start to finish we offer:

Halloween Menu
Cider Cocktails with Devil's Brazil Nuts
Chicken Salad on Pineapple Rings
Witches Rolls or Halloween Sandwiches
Ripe Olives Celery Hearts
Black Magic Ice in Jack o' Lanterns
Black Chocolate Cake
Coffee

Decorate your tables with alternate stacks of twisty crullers piled together like cornstalks in shock, groups of red apples and purple grapes. Pumpkins used as nut cups—cut out black cats spotted over the table—are other novelties that will add to the occasion.

Lest the menu seem too mysterious let us explain. Devil's Brazil Nuts are shelled, remove brown hulls if you wish. Sprinkle them with paprika, then wrap them in wafer-thin slices of bacon, fasten with toothpicks and place in a pan for broiling or baking. Serve at once when the bacon is brown and crisp.

For the Chicken Salad on Pineapple Rings combine diced pineapple with twice as much cold diced chicken, one-quarter the quantity of shredded celery and one-quarter the quantity of chopped walnuts. Slice red, unpeeled apples crosswise, remove the center of the apple and place the apple ring on pineapple slices. Chop the apple pulp fine and blend with mayonnaise dressing; moisten the chicken mixture with the dressing, fill the rings, top with a spoonful of dressing and a halved nut meat.

Black Magic Ice in Jack o' Lanterns

Cut a slice from the tops of a sufficient number of oranges (allowing one for each person) and scoop out all the pulp. Turn the orange skin upside down to drain well. Cut Jack o' Lantern faces in each and set away in the refrigerator. Crush the pulp with one quarter of its quantity of sugar, and rub through a sieve. Add one-quarter the quantity of lemon juice and twice the quantity of prune juice (more if the oranges are not very juicy). The liquid should be quite dark colored. Add more sugar if desired, freeze in an automatic refrigerator. Then fill the face carved shells, replace the lid slice removed, and serve at once.

For a chocolate cake that is as black as a moonless night, make one rich with cocoa and leavened with the action of vinegar and soda.

Black Chocolate Cake
Coffee

Decorate your tables with alternate stacks of twisty crullers piled together like cornstalks in shock, groups of red apples and purple grapes. Pumpkins used as nut cups—cutout black cats spotted over the table—are other novelties that will add to the occasion.

Lest the menu seem too mysterious let us explain. Deviled Brazil Nuts are shelled, remove brown hulls if you wish. Sprinkle them with paprika, then wrap them in wafer-thin slices of bacon, fasten with toothpicks and place in a pan for broiling or baking. Serve at once when the bacon is brown and crisp.

For the Chicken Salad on Pineapple Rings combine diced pineapple with twice as much cold diced chicken, one-quarter the quantity of shredded celery and one-quarter the quantity of chopped walnuts. Slice red, unpeeled apples crosswise; remove the center of the apple and place the apple ring on pineapple slices. Chop the apple pulp fine and blend with mayonnaise dressing; moisten the chicken mixture with the dressing, fill the rings, top with a spoonful of dressing and a halved nut meat.

Black Magic Ice in Jack o' Lanterns

Cut a slice from the tops of a sufficient number of oranges (allowing one for each person) and scoop out all the pulp. Turn the orange skin upside down to drain well. Cut Jack o' Lantern faces in each and set away in the refrigerator. Crush the pulp with one quarter of its quantity of sugar, and rub through a sieve. Add one-quarter the quantity of lemon juice and twice the quantity of prune juice (more if the oranges are not very juicy). The liquid should be quite dark colored. Add more sugar if desired, freeze in an automatic refrigerator. Then fill the face carved shells, replace the lid slice removed, and serve at once.

For a chocolate cake that is as black as a moonless night, make one rich with cocoa and leavened with the action of vinegar and soda.

10-CENT MURDER TRIAL IN MARION

MARION — Dominic Spagiani, 47, was on trial today for the murder of John Yoder, 37, in a fight over a 10-cent poker bet. Self-defense is the plea of Spagiani.

Il Duce's assurance to the world that "we are going ahead in Ethiopia" is somewhat reminiscent of Wilhelm Hohenzollern, who was always pushing forward while remaining comfortably close to Potsdam.

Cutwork—Handsome and Durable

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Sheets, Pillow Cases, Towels Can be Made of These Motifs

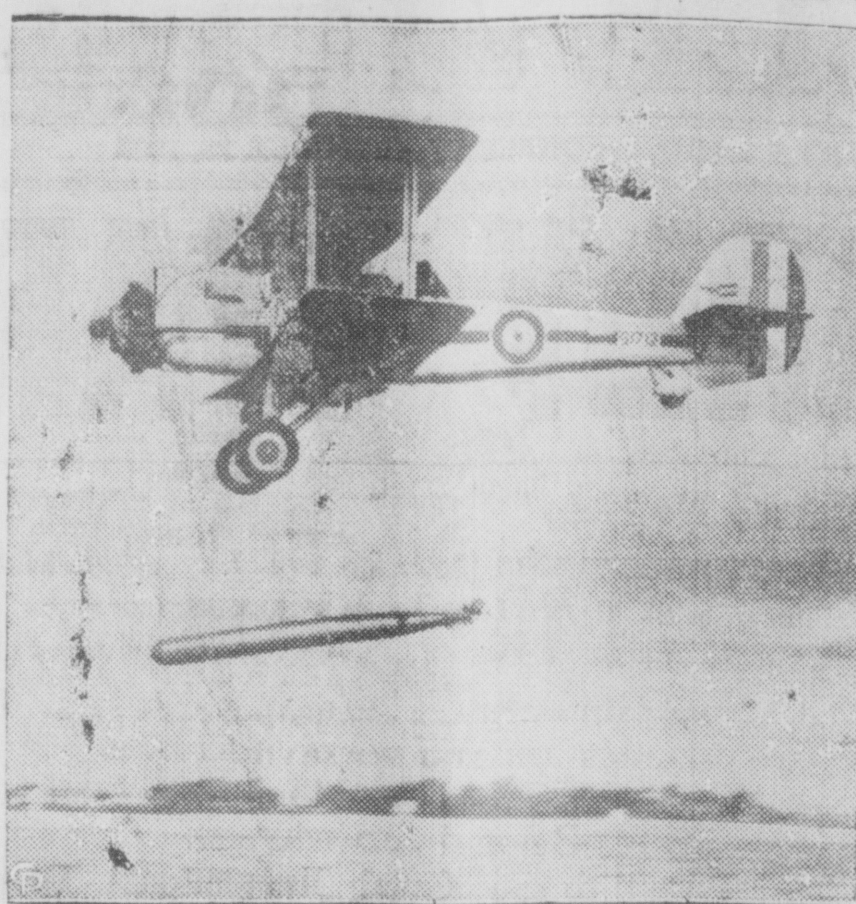

PATTERN 5013

Satisfy that longing for beautiful linens with these choice cutwork motifs. A set of sheet and pillow cases—what a showing they'd make! A scarf or a pair of towels, if you're looking for something smaller. The flowers are set off by the cutwork—you'll be fascinated as you embroider it, particularly when you can start snipping out the background.

In pattern 5013 you will find a transfer pattern of two motifs 5x20 inches for pillow cases, and one motif 9x30 inches for a sheet; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 210 N. Court-st., Circleville, Ohio.

PRESSURE ON IL DUCE

EVEN before embarking upon the interesting adventure of war, Italy's financial condition was precarious. Discontent was becoming more general among the people and was being manifested with increasing boldness. So Il Duce went to war, not in the hope of solving his government's financial problems, but as a means of distracting a disturbed public from their growing seriousness.

In doing so, he has jumped from the frying pan into the fire. How long can Italy, even now insolvent, hear up under the penalties imposed by the League of Nations? Economically, how can Italy endure in the face of a world-wide boycott of Italian goods and the refusal of loans and credits? What effect will the embargo against Ethiopia have upon the success of her military operations? The natural conclusion is that, economically at least, the consequences will be fatal.

There is authoritative information that Italy faces a shortage of motor fuel in the event the war is prolonged. Without imports of iron ore, scrap, copper and coal, Italy's munitions and other industries will be handicapped for the domestic supply is limited. Without cotton imports, textile production will be hampered.

It is possible that Italy may approach self-sufficiency in foodstuffs and that the refusal of Austria and Hungary to cooperate in the imposition of sanctions will ease the difficult situation to some degree. But, in spite of her military power and the relative weakness of her enemy, Italy goes forth to conquest under conditions that may easily lead to her national ruin.

33,980 AUTO DEAD

THE UNITED STATES census bureau announces figures which should be of tragic import to every thoughtful adult in the United States, but which probably will be received with a passing thought of horror and then will be permitted to pass swiftly from the mind.

The bureau reports that during 1934 there were 33,980 persons killed in automobile accidents, a 15 per cent gain over 1933 and a new all-time high.

In many states and also as a national movement, traffic safety campaigns are being carried on and the problem of death on the highways is being given increased consideration in official quarters. Records show, however, that advice and warnings to motorists have far been unavailing.

Surveying the yearly increase in the toll of deaths caused by automobile accidents, the sense of futility sometimes manifest itself, understandable. Certainly it is discouraging to see the appalling toll of rising despite all the punitive and persuasive efforts put forth. Yet there is a hopeful note in the situation to be gleaned from the census bureau's latest compilation listing by the states last year's death rates from auto mishaps and showing the percentage increase in each state.

According to the figures there were three states—New Hampshire, Delaware and Kansas—that showed decreases. Of all the others there were only three that recorded increases under 2.50 per cent. The three states are New Jersey, Connecticut and Alabama.

Well, it might be worse. Even now murder is unusual enough to be news.

A SURPRISED DECLARER

ALL SORTS of surprises are experienced at the card table. In this particular case the declarer was most pleasantly surprised. So also was his partner, who had given a ralse most reluctantly.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; West, 2-Diamonds; South, double; West, 3-Diamonds; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Hearts; West doubled, expecting to win two trump tricks, with a diamond and possibly a spade trick. The K of diamonds lost to the lone Ace. A low trump return obliged West to lose the Q or play the Ace. The latter won the second trick. It was unsafe to lead another diamond, that would establish the J in dummy. Nor dared West lead a diamond. Finally the top club was led. South's Q took the trick. A low trump picked up West's Q and dummy's K. Declarer regained her hand with the Ace of clubs, then she picked up the last hostile trump, by leading the J.

South thought that she could win by leading off good hearts. She led three hearts and good hearts and K of spades, leaving only the 8 of clubs and the 3 of spades in her own hand. West was reduced to the Q of spades and the Q of diamonds. Dummy was stripped to the J of spades and the K of clubs. East held the J and 2 of clubs. There was no squeeze over which to gloat, but South made 5-odd, by taking dummy's K of clubs, then having to give West a spade trick.

Declarer's Partner Surprised
The declarer is not the only player who may be surprised. I know that my partner was surprised last evening at what the following deal brought forth.

Bidding South 1 dealt and passed, intending to be heard if some player opened the bidding. North made an opening bid of 1-No Trump, showing at least 2½ quick tricks, with good distribution, and probably a 4-3-3 division between suits. I had to make a game-try, by jumping into 5-Diamonds, over East's pass. There was nothing to the play. All we lost was a trick to the Ace of diamonds, but we won the game. We had no right to bid higher. I might have quite different cards and lost an added trick or two.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 33

GARY PROBABLY had another girl. Certainly she hadn't been the first girl in his life but . . . Carol rubbed the cold cream from her face with unnecessary vigor. Applying rouge delicately she thought that all men were alike. And besides who was she, so inexperienced, to assume that she could pick out the men who could be trusted? She dabbed at her face with powder and rubbing it smooth, admitted that she had no right to expect Gary to sit around waiting for her to make up her mind whether or not she was in love with him.

He had never asked her if she was in love with him. He had never said he was in love with her. Afraid to, probably. She tore the lace on one of her most expensive slips as she pulled it over her head angrily and taking it off tossed it aside for another.

Well, that was that, she wouldn't ever chase another man. Not that she had chased him. Surely it was all right to call a man on the telephone and ask him to a party. She hadn't said anything else. And neither had he. He hadn't asked what she was doing. Hadn't said he had tried to call her. Hadn't even said he would call her or that he would like to see her.

Carol tried on the green dress, the flowered print, the black taffeta. She didn't like herself in any of them. She didn't like herself. Finally, she selected the black velvet she had worn that last night she had dined with Owen.

And Owen? Even Owen couldn't be trusted. Fine as he was, much as she looked up to him as her ideal, Carol had to admit that his kissing her was against the code. Carol didn't know very much of human nature.

She was dressed now and packing fresh things in her dressing case for she would go directly back to the Van Cleves. On second thought, she took two frocks from the dressing case remembering that Dr. Harding would be returning in four days and she would be coming back to her own place. Poor Miranda would miss her she did not doubt but she could not spend her life in her service and she would soon be finding something else to do. Time enough to wonder what when she had returned to the old way of life.

Carol sat down at her desk and reached for the red telephone directory. She would look up some of the medical employment agencies. She might be able to find work in another doctor's office and she would not ask Owen to help her again. She opened the book to the page she sought and shut it quickly.

"Pshaw, she was going to a party. To see her anyone would think she hadn't the money to pay the rent. She was going to have a good time, forget jobs, the Van Cleves, Owen and Gary. She was going to have a fling at fun. It would be so nice to see Isabel and John and all their crowd again."

"Hello, there are lots of your friends here. Where've you been keeping yourself. Your telephone never answers," Mary said when she arrived.

Carol kissed her and didn't answer her question. There was a jam in the living room. Smoke curtains hung everywhere. The Riccio piano twins were performing at the same piano and everyone hung over it. Carol saw Isabel and waved to her.

"Hi, everybody! Look who's here, our little lady of mystery, Carol Kennedy!" someone shouted.

"Isn't she?" a low voice at Carol's elbow spoke in her ear. She felt color rise in her cheeks when she turned to see Gary standing there and before she could speak.

"Why didn't you tell me it was Mary's party?" he demanded.

"Would that have made any difference?" she asked in a voice she didn't intend to make so cold.

"Certainly, I couldn't let Mary down."

"But you don't mind letting me down," she said quite unreasonably.

"I've never done that," he answered quietly.

"Let's not talk about it," Carol was like the little girl who knows she is in the wrong but feels none the less aggrieved.

"Please let's. I don't know what's the matter with you. Your manner is very strange. You make me feel I've done something wrong."

"Be a good boy and get me some punch and something to eat if you can find it. I haven't had any dinner and I'm starving," Carol flashed a sudden bright smile on him.

"There's plenty to eat and excellent punch. Maybe you'll be in a better humor when you've had some food. I had a pet bear when I was a little chap who always acted this way when he was hungry," Gary gave her no time for a cutting reply.

He threaded his way through the crowd to the dining room and food.

Then Isabel captured her and demanded to know what she was doing. Carol had no intention of revealing her confidential job

"I'm . . . I'm doing some research for Dr. Harding," she said not entirely truthfully.

"She's just had a letter from Kathy Prentice," someone said, "and she's staying abroad for the winter."

"She's not," Carol said quickly and before she realized what she was saying. "She's planning to be married later this month."

The girl with the red hair who had spoken, laughed. "Never take Kathy's wedding dates seriously. She's always putting that off. She wrote Sue that she had met the most divine Frenchman with some sort of a title."

The red-headed girl didn't know that Carol was Kathy's cousin and might have said a number of other things but not Gary returned at that moment with food for Carol.

"Gary, didn't you use to be a flame of Kathy Prentice's?" the red-headed one persisted.

"Always her admirer as who isn't?" he answered suavely, and Carol was grateful to him.

"Feel in a better humor?" he asked when Carol had disposed of her salad and sandwiches.

"Much," she said. "I was in a bad humor because I was tired and chatty and you were anything else but on the telephone."

"The telephone? Oh yes, I wanted to talk to you but there were some chaps in my place and we were going over some papers. Didn't have a chance to talk to you."

"Come on, everybody. We're going to Harlem. Come along Carol. Mary came to get them."

But Carol responded: "I can't, Mary. It's late. I'm a hard-working girl and I've got to get some sleep. If you don't mind, I'll run along."

Gary took her in his car but the old Gary wasn't there. His manner towards her was not cold but it was detached and it puzzled and hurt her. She said "good-night" to him and he said he'd see her soon.

She let herself in with a key Perkins had given her. Her footsteps made no sound on the deep carpet though she fumbled on the lower steps of the staircase, not wanting to turn the lights on.

There was a light in the library; its rays filtered through the slightly open door.

Carol was half way up the stairs when she heard the imperious tones of a woman's voice:

"Torton, I will not hear of it. I forbid you to put Dr. Harding on the case. We'll be lost! How could you have been so stupid!"

"SUCH IS THE DEATH THE SOLDIER DIES"

Such is the death the soldier dies;
He falls the column speeds away;
Upon the dabbled grass he lies,
His brave heart following, still, the fray.

The smoke-wraiths drift among the trees,
The battle storms along the hill;
The glint of distant arms he sees;
He hears his comrades shouting still.

A glimpse of far-borne flags, that fade
And vanish in the rolling din;
He knows the sweeping charge is made,
The cheering lines are closing in.

Unmindful of his mortal wound,
He faintly calls and seeks to rise;
But weakness drags him to the ground;
Such is the death the soldier dies.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The thunder of flying hoofs, cheering thousands of frenzied fanatics who frequent the race track, form the background for the quieter, yet just as thrilling, story of young love in the new photoplay, "Hot Tip."

"Hot Tip" introduces a newly formed comedy team to the screen in ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason. These star comedians merge their talents in the roles of Jimmy and Belle McGill, henpecked husband and nagging wife respectively. Jimmy's avocation is picking the winners—when he guesses right. Most often the horses fail to run true to his hope sheet. Belle, on the other hand, is a bitter foe of horse racing and gambling, and controls the family exchequer.

Mose became heir to a few hundred dollars and immediately went down town to pay a grocery account of long standing, after which he strolled down the street about two blocks into the Jones' grocery store and purchased a large supply of groceries for which he paid cash.

The groceryman with whom he had the large account saw him, and a few days later, stopped him and inquired: "Mose, why did you buy a large bill of groceries from Mr. Jones after I have carried your account so long?"

Mose looked surprised and replied: "Lawdy, Mr. Smith, I didn't know you sold groceries for cash."

200 Million WPA Grade Crossing Program Bugged by Rail Lobby's Joker.

WASHINGTON—When the President disembarks from the Houston, the most pressing problem facing him will be the disastrous snarl of the Works-Relief plan to put 3,500,000 men to work "by November 1."

This chaotic condition is an open book.

Known to only a few insiders, however, is the fact that the much-ballyhooed program for the elimination of railroad grade crossings is virtually at a dead halt.

Out of the $200,000,000 to have been spent, only $2,000,000 has even been allocated.

First snarl was the ruling that $1,140 must be spent per man per year on works-relief jobs. This left insufficient funds for materials. After weeks of delay the order finally was modified.

Then it was discovered that a joker had been slipped into the Works-Relief Bill by the railroad lobby exempting the carriers from bearing any of the cost of grade-crossing elimination.

This put the entire financial burden on state and federal governments.

The states' share was fixed as the land necessary for grade crossing projects.

The result has been a chaos of haggling between state authorities, property owners and railroads. To date, only Ohio and Texas have succeeded in getting under way—solely because they were able to persuade some of the railroads to put up a part of the cost.

Note:—the railroads are anxious to keep secret their cooperative attitude in Ohio and Texas because they fear if it became known, other states would demand similar concessions.

Naval Base

One reason the French were so reluctant to pledge British use of their naval bases in case of war in the Mediterranean, is the fact that Toulon, their chief naval station, is only 140 miles from an Italian air base.

British vessels in Toulon would be a tempting excuse for an Italian air raid which the French don't want to risk.

Sanctions

Behind tempestuous European debates over a naval blockade against Italy is one all-important fact. Geneva has just begun to realize that sanctions mean nothing without a blockade to enforce them.

For years the League of Nations has been humming blithely along, pointing with pride to its machinery for imposing economic and financial boycotts against an aggressor.

But only within the last few days have the Geneva statesmen suddenly realized that, in order to enforce such a boycott, most nations require special legislation.

President Roosevelt, for instance, could not have declared his arms embargo had not the Senate rushed through the Neutrality Act during the closing days of the last Congressional session.

Argentina, for instance, as a member of the League, started to apply sanctions; then found she had no laws empowering her president to cut off trade with Italy. Her Congress has just adjourned, so it will be next April before a law can be passed permitting Argentine sanctions against Italy.

Many European nations are in the same fix. Furthermore, Parliaments are notoriously inclined to think of re-election rather than world peace. And if severance of trade relations with Italy is going to harm local industry, cause unpleasant political reverberations, new legislation may wait even longer than April.

Meanwhile Mussolini moves on in Abyssinia.

Absent Treatment

Harry Hopkins has hired M. R. Werner, New York author, to write a running account of what progress Works-Relief is making.

"I don't expect to go out in the field much," says Werner. "I can see the works from Washington. I wrote the life of Barnum without meeting him, and the life of Bryan after meeting him only once as a kid."

"Before I finished my book on Tammany Hall I tried to go down and look the place over. But it was the Fourth of July and there were so many policemen standing around that I got frightened and went away."

PRESSURE ON IL DUCE

EVEN before embarking upon the interesting adventure of war, Italy's financial condition was precarious. Discontent was becoming more general among the people and was being manifested with increasing boldness. So Il Duce went to war, not in the hope of solving his government's financial problems, but as a means of distracting a disturbed public from their growing seriousness. In doing so, he has jumped from the frying pan into the fire. How long can Italy, even now insolvent, hear up under the penalties imposed by the League of Nations? Economically, how can Italy endure in the face of a world-wide boycott of Italian goods and the imposition of loans and credits? What effect will the embargo against Ethiopia have upon the success of her military operations? The natural conclusion is that, economically at least, the consequences will be fatal.

There is authoritative information that Italy faces a shortage of motor fuel in the event the war is prolonged. Without imports of iron ore, scrap, copper and coal, Italy's munitions and other industries will be handicapped for the domestic supply is limited. Without cotton imports, textile production will be hampered.

It is possible that Italy may approach self-sufficiency in food-stuffs and that the refusal of Austria and Hungary to cooperate in the imposition of sanctions will ease the difficult situation to some degree. But, in spite of her military power and the relative weakness of her enemy, Italy goes forth to conquest under conditions that may easily lead to her national ruin.

33,980 AUTO DEAD

THE UNITED STATES census bureau announces figures which should be of tragic import to every thoughtful adult in the United States, but which probably will be received with a passing thought of horror and then will be permitted to pass swiftly from the mind.

The bureau reports that during 1934 there were 33,980 persons killed in automobile accidents, a 15 per cent gain over 1933 and 'a new all-time high.'

In many states and also as a national movement, traffic safety campaigns are being carried on and the problem of death on the highways is being given increased consideration in official quarters. Records show, however, that advice and warnings to motorists have so far been unavailing.

Surveying the yearly increase in the toll of deaths caused by automobile accidents, the sense of futility sometimes manifest itself, is understandable. Certainly it is discouraging to see the appalling total go on rising despite all the punitive and persuasive efforts put forth. Yet there is a hopeful note in the situation to be gleaned from the census bureau's latest compilation listing by the states last year's death rates from auto mishaps and showing the percentage of increase in each state.

According to the figures there were three states—New Hampshire, Delaware and Kansas—that showed decreases. Of all the others there were only three that recorded increases under 2.50 per cent. The three states are New Jersey, Connecticut and Alabama.

Well, it might be worse. Even now murder is unusual enough to be news.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; West, 2-Diamonds; South, double; West, 3-Diamonds; South, 3-Hearts; West, 4-Hearts; West doubled, expecting to win two trump tricks, with a diamond and possibly a spade trick.

The K of diamonds lost to the Ace. A low trump return obliged West to lose the Q or play the Ace. The latter won the second trick. It was unsafe to lead another diamond, as that would establish the J in dummy. Nor dared West lead a spade. Finally the top club was led and South's Q took the trick. A low trump picked up West's Q and dummy's K. Declarer regained her hand with the Ace of clubs, then she picked up the last hostile trump, by leading the J.

South thought that she could squeeze West by leading off good trumps. She led three hearts and her Ace and K of spades, leaving only the 8 of clubs and the 3 of spades in her own hand. West was reduced to the Q of spades and the Q of diamonds. Dummy was stripped to the J of spades and the K of clubs. East held the J and 2 of clubs.

There was no squeeze over which to gloat, but South made 5-odd, by taking dummy's K of clubs, then having to give West a spade trick.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 23

GARY PROBABLY had another girl. Certainly she hadn't been the first girl in his life but . . . Carol rubbed the cold cream from her face with unnecessary vigor. Applying rouge delicately she thought that all men were alike. And besides who was she, so inexperienced, to assume that she could pick out the man who could be trusted? She dabbed at her face with powder and rubbing it smooth, admitted that she had no right to expect Gary to sit around waiting for her to make up her mind whether or not she was in love with him.

He had never asked her if she was in love with him. He had never said he was in love with her. Afraid to, probably. She tore the lace on one of her most expensive slips as she pulled it over her head angrily and taking it off tossed it aside for another.

Well, that was that, she wouldn't ever chase another man. Not that she had chased him. Surely it was all right to call a man on the telephone and ask him to a party. She hadn't said anything else. And neither had he. He hadn't asked what she was doing. Hadn't said he had tried to call her. Hadn't even said he would call her or that he would like to see her.

Have you a family tree? What is its value? These and other questions of a similar nature are given in "Reckless Roads," now showing at the Circle Theatre. Featuring Judith Allen and Regis Toomey and supported by Lloyd Hughes, Ben Alexander and Louise Carter, the picture offers a problem confronting many American families whose struggles are similar to those without the benefit of a long line of famed attendants.

Melungeons are a distinct race of people living in the mountains of eastern Tennessee. They are about the color of mulattoes, but have straight hair.

UNPREPARED
The golfer had lost his ball, and, not unnaturally, was inclined to be annoyed with his caddy.

"Well, sir," said the boy, "it doesn't usually go anywhere, and so it took me unprepared like."

200 Million WPA Grade Crossing Program Boggled by Rail Lobby's Joker.

WASHINGTON—When the President disembarks from the Houston, the most pressing problem facing him will be the disastrous snarl of the Works-Relief plan to put 3,500,000 men to work "by November 1."

This chaotic condition is an open book.

Known to only a few insiders, however, is the fact that the much-ballyhoosed program for the elimination of railroad grade crossings is virtually at a dead halt.

Out of the $200,000,000 to have been spent, only $2,000,000 has been allocated.

First snarl was the ruling that $1,140 must be spent per man per year on works-relief jobs. This left insufficient funds for materials. After weeks of delay the order finally was modified.

Then it was discovered that a joker had been slipped into the Works-Relief Bill by the railroad lobby exempting the carriers from bearing any of the cost of grade-crossing elimination.

This put the entire financial burden on state and federal governments.

The states' share was fixed as the land necessary for grade crossing projects.

The result has been a chaos of haggling between state authorities, property owners and railroads. To date, only Ohio and Texas have succeeded in getting under way—solely because they were able to persuade some of the railroads to put up a part of the cost.

Note:—the railroads are anxious to keep secret their cooperative attitude in Ohio and Texas because they fear if it became known, other states would demand similar concessions.

Naval Base

One reason the French were so reluctant to pledge British use of their naval bases in case of war in the Mediterranean, is the fact that Toulon, their chief naval station, is only 140 miles from an Italian air base.

British vessels in Toulon would be a tempting excuse for an Italian air raid which the French don't want to risk.

Sanctions

Behind tempestuous European debates over a naval blockade against Italy is one all-important fact. Geneva has just begun to realize that sanctions mean nothing without a blockade to enforce them.

For years the League of Nations has been humming blithely along, pointing with pride to its machinery for imposing economic and financial boycotts against an aggressor.

But only within the last few days have the Geneva statesmen suddenly realized that, in order to enforce such a boycott, most nations require special legislation.

President Roosevelt, for instance, could not have declared his arms

embargo had not the Senate rushed through the Neutrality Act during the closing days of the last Congressional session.

Argentina, for instance, as a member of the League, started to apply sanctions; then found she had no laws empowering her president to cut off trade with Italy. Her Congress has just adjourned, so it will be next April before a law can be passed permitting Argentine sanctions against Italy.

Many European nations are in the same fix. Furthermore, Parliaments are notoriously inclined to think of re-election rather than world peace. And if severance of trade relations with Italy is going to harm local industry, cause unpleasant political reverberations, new legislation may wait even longer than April.

Meanwhile Mussolini moves on in Abyssinia.

Absent Treatment

Harry Hopkins has hired M. R. Werner, New York author, to write a running account of what progress Works-Relief is making.

"I don't expect to go out in the field much," says Werner. "I can see the works from Washington. I wrote the life of Barnum without meeting him, and the life of Bryan after meeting him only once as a kid."

"Before I finished my book on Tammany Hall I tried to go down and look the place over. But it was the Fourth of July and there were so many policemen standing around that I got frightened and went away."

How Chemical Changes In Muscle Create Energy

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN THE MUSCLES of the living machine the latent changes occur which convert latent energy into living energy. There the chemistry of life can be observed in its final essence.

Do you remember the terrific sensations with which Huxley poured scorn on those who foolishly suggested that when you hold a cannon ball straight out at the end of your arm, you are defying the law of gravitation?

Natural laws, in the first place, are not defied. And certainly the law of gravitation is not defied by this familiar instance of the conversion of energy. The muscles of the arm simply exerted enough energy in lifting the cannonball to counteract the pull of the energy of the forces of gravitation.

The chemical changes that occur in a muscle as a result of its action in exercise are very complicated.

Perhaps the easiest way to explain them is to imagine that we have a single muscle, partially isolated from the body, but still living, and still with its nerve and blood supply.

We imagine that we stimulate the nerve going to the muscle and thus send it into a series of contractions; and we further imagine that we can make a chemical analysis of the blood that goes into the muscle, and comes out the other end of the muscle. We have, in the difference between the two blood samples an idea of the changes that are taking place.

(As a matter of fact, biochemists can actually do this; and although there are many parts of the process which are obscure, or entirely unknown, the essential features are probably entirely clear.)

Blood From Glucose
The blood that goes into the contracting muscles contains a form of sugar called "glucose," and it contains an abundance of oxygen. The blood that comes out has a reduced—sometimes, depending on the amount of contraction, a greatly reduced—amount of glucose; it contains less oxygen, but more carbon dioxide; it contains more water and a toally new chemical, lactic acid, appears.

How did these changes come about?

The carbon that formed the carbon dioxide came from the glucose and combined with oxygen in the process of combustion thus: Carbon, plus oxygen, equals carbon dioxide.

Similarly there is hydrogen in the glucose molecule which, when liberated, unites with oxygen to form water: Hydrogen, plus oxygen, equals water.

Just what causes this sudden chemical change in the muscle is unknown. It is the secret of the living machine. In a gasoline engine, it is an electric spark. Perhaps it is the same thing in the muscle.

(Note: Space limitation has made my discussion of this subject very inadequate. Anyone interested will find a more extended popular explanation in Chapter X of T. R. Pearson's book, "The Materials of Life.")

About This And That In Many Sports

WAIT FOR NOV. 2
This Ohio State-Notre Dame football game to be played Nov. 2 in Columbus will be a honey, there is no denying. The Irish are pointing toward the Buckeyes, and vice versa, although Illinois and Michigan occupy important places in the Ohio way of thinking. The Notre Dame victory, so far as the Big Ten is concerned, means little to the Schmittmen.

POINTING FOR OHIO
Writers who covered the Notre Dame-Pitt game last week went back east with stories that Layden and everyone else connected with the South Bend team would rather defeat Ohio this year than to gain a victory over any other team. The Bucks, on paper, have already won the national championship, at least if it is a Columbus paper you read.

GALLICO DIFFERS
There is one writer who is not so enthusiastic as others concerning the Notre Dame team. Regardless of what some followers of the green may say, Paul Gallico draws down a nice salary for what he has to say and write about football and various other sports. He writes the following about the Notre Dame victory over Pittsburgh:

Weakness At Ends
Notre Dame's weakness did not appear where it was expected, in the center of the line, against Pitt, but developed around the ends, and this press box quarterback will never know why Pitt didn't continue to run those ends. Peters, particularly, was a setup for the Pitt backs, and all their long runs went over him. Later, Peters was the hero of the game with his 36-yard place kick, but that doesn't alter the fact that there is a soft spot there. The Notre Dame line, I thought, was very brisk and truculent, and refused to do business. They pushed the Pitts back, five and six yards at a clip. But every time the white shirts headed for the wings the Notre Dame rooters shivered. And, of course, if Notre Dame is to compete with Ohio State in two weeks, the boys will simply have to learn how to tackle. Right now they seem to think tackling is a species of necking.

MILLER RETAINS FEATHER HONORS

BOSTON, Oct. 23—Freddie Miller of Cincinnati today remained king of the featherweights. Miller brushed aside Vernon Cormier of Worcester, Mass., the latest threat to his world's crown, in a 15-round title bout at Boston garden last night. The champion taking twelve of the rounds and receiving the unanimous decision. Although it was the first world featherweight championship contest in this city in forty years, only 4500 fans turned out. The gross receipts amounted to $6636 and the sum guaranteed the champion. Miller was the master from the opening bell, his double-barrelled attack from the portside puzzling Cormier, who fought gamely to the end. The titleholder did some telling damage with his thunderous left hand on Cormier's middle and peppered away at his jaw and head with short right hand jabs.

Mahoney, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, charged that Dr. Lewald is being "used as a screen to conceal the German government's most flagrant violations of Olympic ideals of fair play to all." Mahoney said that indisputable proof existed of Germany's discrimination against Jewish, as well as Catholic athletes, and called upon Dr. Lewald to resign his Olympic office.

TWO CREEKS NOW CLOSED TO FISHERS

Little Walnut and Part of Deercreek Affected; Many Fish Distributed
Two Pickaway-co streams were stocked and closed to fishing Tuesday afternoon.
A shipment of 300 channel catfish and 200 bullheads, breeders from Lake Erie, were distributed in Little Walnut. The stream will be closed in Walnut-twip at the bridge on Route 23, one mile each direction. The creek will be well posted and fishing prohibited until July 1, 1936.
A load of 50 rock bass and 50 small mouth bass were placed in Deercreek at the Williamsport bridge and fishing in this stream will be prohibited one mile above and one mile below the bridge until July 1, 1936. All of these fish are full grown.
A shipment of 12,000 blue gill fingerlings from the Buckeye Lake hatchery were distributed in the canal in Wayne-twip. This stream was not closed.
The distribution was made by Clarence Francis, local game protector, Fred Harlow, district conservation officer of Newark, George Thompson of Sandusky, and county sportsmen.

Purdue Loses Center

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 23—On the eve of the homecoming game against Carnegie Tech here Saturday, Purdue was handed an unexpected blow today with the announcement Capt. Ed Skoronski of Chicago, one of the country's outstanding centers, is ineligible for further competition.
Skoronski, enrolled as a special student at Georgetown in the fall of 1931, played for a few minutes as a reserve on the Georgetown eleven, counting as one year of competition according to Big 10 rules, despite the fact he had not been graduated from high school and returned to Chicago later that fall to complete his high school studies.
George Bell, a junior and a letter man, was being groomed today to take over the center post.
SEEKING REVENGE
NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 23—Notre Dame will scrimmage against Navy plays as demonstrated by the frosh today, as Elmer Layden labors to remove another blot from the Irish escutcheon. Notre Dame by whipping Pitt last Saturday gained a measure of satisfaction for the three successive beatings previously administered by the Panthers. At Baltimore Saturday the Irish will be remembering Navy's 10 to 6 victory last year, and 7 to 0 in 1933. The team leaves tomorrow, and will drill at Griffith stadium, Washington Friday.

KARCHER ONLY BUCK UNABLE TO TAKE PART

Shoulder Too "Ouchy"; Maggied or Chrissinger to Take Guard Position
COLUMBUS, Oct. 23—Trainer Tucker Smith of the Ohio State squad today announced practically all of the Buckeyes' nine members now on the injured list, with the exception of Jim Karcher, regular left guard, will be ready for action against Indiana Saturday should Coach Francis Schmidt desire their services.
Merle Wendt, star end who received a slight fracture of the nose, will probably start against the Hoosiers. At first it was feared that his injury would confine him to the sidelines until the Notre Dame contest Nov. 2. Wendt will wear a specially-constructed nose guard.
Karcher, nursing a badly bruised shoulder, is definitely out of the Hoosier encounter. Whether he will face the Irish will depend on how rapidly his injury heals.
For the first time this fall, Schmidt sent the Buckeyes through an extensive defensive drill, a freshman squad employing expected Indiana plays against the varsity.
Sol Maggied, Columbus sophomore, or Warren Chrissinger, Springfield sophomore, have the inside tracks on Karcher's berth. The Columbus product because of his showing against Northwestern last week is expected to get the starting call.

Navy to Shoot the Works Against Notre Dame Men

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 23—"We're going in there Saturday to shoot the works."
Tom Hamilton, Navy coach speaking.
This was said as dusk was falling over Thompson stadium where the pride of Uncle Sam's first line of defense were punting footballs, booming them down the field—in the general direction of the Notre Dame goal line. The floodlights illuminated the terrain where charging, bucking, running football players were polishing up the rough edges for the big push Saturday at the municipal stadium in Baltimore.
"We are ready," said Coach Tom.
"We concede nothing. If the boys only play football Saturday I believe we can take the Irish."
"Our scouts have returned with the information that this year's Notre Dame team is probably as good as some of the finest teams the late Knute Rockne developed—the Irish present backfield—Layden, Cariden, Shakespeare are all splendid backs but I believe we have the better men."
"Look for a great game Saturday."
Earlier the coach called the entire varsity together for a session in the lecture room. There will be one today, one tomorrow and the final on Saturday with field practice sandwiched in between.

When a Gambler Has 'Em He Plays 'Em.
SOME COACHES will gamble and others play the cards close to the vest. As one who will take a chance and urges his quarterbacks to demand the daring and unexpected, meet Francis A. Schmidt, coach of Ohio State who plays 'em when he has 'em as hard as any player who ever filled an inside straight.
Coach Schmidt, hawk-eyed, gray-haired, with keen eyes, tall, a rapid-fire talker, does not often smile during a football game. He saves that for the dressing room. The game fascinates him. He will take all the chances he has to, but when he has the cards he is not one to let a single trick, or a pot, escape.
He gambled with a flock of laterals in the Kentucky game. The Buckeyes were not too familiar with them and Kentucky messed up the attack, holding State to a comparatively close score. But he is sticking by his laterals. When the plays worked later against Drake, he let the boys run them for all they were worth.
Touchdown Is Idea
There was some criticism of the coach after the Drake game, which ended with the score 85 to 7 in Ohio's favor. Why murder Drake? With the game in the bag, wouldn't it have been seemly if Ohio had pulled its punches?
Coach Schmidt replies: "The idea of this game is to score touchdowns, isn't it?" In other words, when a gambler has 'em he plays 'em. That is the Schmidt philosophy. Every player must give every minute. Forty-six players appeared against hapless Drake, and each man was supposed to show how well he could play. If Ohio State has aces, it isn't Ohio's fault that the opponent has deuces. Next hand, maybe Ohio will catch the deuces.
After the 85 to 7 victory over Drake, Schmidt went about the dressing room with a handful of notes. He stopped here and there to talk to a player, showing him the notes. The notes were mistakes made during the game.
Coach Schmidt says a team that pulls its punches soon acquires a sparring-partner complex. He wants the eleven he coaches to be the champion. A race track theory that coincides with the coach's idea is that a horse, if pulled, will get the habit of running second, and when called upon to win won't have it.
With his aides, Ernie Godfrey, Floyd Stahl and Gaylord Stunchcomb, the Buckeye coach is all over the field during practice. He is loud with criticism, but just as vociferous with praise. His manner is hard-boiled, but he is composed.

in the Buckeye Conference Press Box With GILSON WRIGHT

DAYTON'S hopes for a share in the buckeye conference football title will receive their acid test this week when the Flyers, winners of two out of three games played to date against Buckeye foes, will play Ohio university's Bobcats at Athens Saturday.
Ohio, rated as the dark horse of the conference, showed that it was not invulnerable last Saturday when Marshall's last-place team scored two touchdowns late in the game to throw a scare in the Bobcat ranks. Don Peden's men came out ahead, however, 20 to 13.
Dayton, loser in the Buckeye only to the powerful Cincinnati team, defeated Marshall rather handily, 20 to 6, and if the Flyers are at their best this week they should give Ohio a real battle.
Ohio must win in order to retain its tie with Cincinnati for the leadership. Both the Bearcats and Cincinnati are undefeated in all games this year, and each has a single Buckeye victory to its credit. Cincinnati does not play another Buckeye game until next week meeting Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware in a game that will be second only to the Notre Dame-Ohio State contest that day.
Cincinnati will attempt to keep its goal line uncrossed Saturday night when Coach Russ Cohen's bearcats meet University of Baltimore at Cincinnati. Baltimore lost to West Chester Teachers in the east last Saturday, 34 to 0, and shouldn't prove too great an obstacle in Cincinnati's path.
Marshall and Miami, each without a conference victory, will try to emerge from the cellar when they meet Saturday at Oxford. Marshall has lost two games but seems to be on the upgrade. Miami has lost only one conference contest and a victory would put the Redskins back in the running.
The sixth Buckeye team, Ohio Wesleyan, has a non-conference game this week with Wittenberg at Springfield Saturday afternoon. The Bishops are fresh from their brilliant battle at Swanton, which the Orange won, 18 to 10, and should be the favorite to defeat Wittenberg.

CAN THE AVERAGE CITIZEN KEEP US OUT OF WAR?

Folk Interviewed in Small City Say "Yes!"

BRYAN, O., Oct. 23—But what can the average citizen, like you and me, do to keep the United States out of a war in Europe?

The man who asked the question sat in a hotel lobby, gazing out into the early dusk. An October haze drifted along the tree-lined streets of this busy county seat.

The speaker's name was Carr. He had been in town all day on business and now, relaxing, he let his talk fall in with that of the writer and a Mr. Johnston, also a stranger in town, whiling away the evening with conversation and a good cigar. Carr asked his question with a little frown of futility.

One Man's Opinion
"We can do plenty," asserted Johnston, leaning forward. "For instance, I'm a member of the Legion post back home and most of the boys feel as I do. We don't want war and as an organization we will make a real effort to see that it doesn't get started."

"Do you think that is the sentiment in other Legion posts?" he was asked.

"I know it is," Johnston affirmed. "I get around quite a bit and naturally I talk to a lot of Legionnaires. In the first place, it helps me sell my goods. But as for getting into war, we're down on it."

"Yet the Legion has always backed a big national defense program. Army, navy, air forces; you have plugged for big appropriations for them," Carr reminded him.

Defense—and Only That
"You bet we have," said Johnston. "Defense has a big place on our program. But, when we say 'defense' that's just what we mean—we're not in favor of crossing any more oceans to get into trouble."

He paused to relight his cigar, then went on: "I didn't see active service abroad, so I talk more freely than the boys who know what war really is. But their opposition to battling on foreign soil is twice as strong as mine. It's quiet, but it's fierce."

"A lot of them have children now. These fathers haven't any false illusions regarding patriotism. They aren't going to let their sons be fooled or sacrificed for anything but actual preservation of this country."

"Granted?" This was Carr. "But how many Legionnaires are there in the United States?"

Ideas Are General
"Let's not say 'Legionnaires'," Johnston objected. "The Legion is not a selfish organization. We share a lot of the same ideas, especially along this line, with all ex-soldiers, whether they belong to our organization or not."

He explained further: "You see, there are the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Ladies' Auxiliaries, and a lot of veterans who don't belong to any group. It has been figured out that, in all, there must be between eight and nine millions of us. We have friends and relatives who will join us on this issue."

"The 'patriots' on Capital Hill will think a while before they toss away as many votes as that. We are crystalized on this point of opposing war. Some politicians risked fighting us on the bonus, but they had better not ink us with the wrong kind of flag waving. We know too much about that!"

"O. K.—so far," Carr agreed.

Here is Reaction of One Group First Hand

"Now, what about me? I'm not a veteran."

Other Groups
"Do you belong to a luncheon club?" questioned Johnston.

"Yes."

"Well—there should be plenty of fathers and sound thinking business men who object to entering a foreign war."

"There probably are," Carr admitted. "But they don't know any more than I do about how the average citizen can do anything to prevent it."

Johnston spoke quickly. "Get up a petition or resolution with plenty of signatures to forward to your congressman, senators, and other clubs in your association. Put teeth into it. Force your governmental representative to realize that to vote for war is to sign their own political death warrant."

Congress Will Hesitate
"We can't go to war without a vote of congress, and your representatives, there, aren't going to ignore the avowed wishes of a majority of their constituents."

Carr reflected. "I suppose this thing could be carried to parent-teachers associations, Kiwanis, Rotary, Exchange clubs, mothers clubs and the like."

"Why not?" demanded Johnston.

"Are you forgetting the subtleties of a propaganda campaign financed by those who desire war for economic reasons and who work the people to fighting pitch by playing up the injuries which are certain to befall our nationals and our commerce during a foreign war?"

"We could use counter-propaganda," Carr seemed almost enthusiastic for the moment. He paused, continued. "We could, that is, if we were organized and militant, if all our groups would combine into one great peace society."

SIX WPA JOBS

lumbus today were exerting every effort to have 60,000 more men on WPA jobs by next Monday.

Dayton Frost, assistant to Charles C. Stillman, retiring federal chief for Ohio, even asserted that the greater number of the new employees would be on the jobs by Friday of this week.

Each district WPA administrator has been notified how many projects will be started in his territory and the sorting of relief clients for the jobs is being done now. Approximately 3500 more projects in addition to the 1055 that were in operation last week, will be started under the federal allocation of over 26 million dollars for Ohio.

Last week, in Pickaway-co, there was one project in operation, employing nine men. Throughout Ohio, the report for the week ending October 19 showed, 33,923 men employed on 1055 projects. These figures are expected to show a sizeable increase by the end of the current week.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE--

WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute, 25c at drug stores, 1931 C. M. Co.

NEW GAS RATE

sumption of gas increased during the first four years the ordinance could be modified. He explained it was impossible to forecast economic conditions during the next five years but he felt the new rate would meet the approval of all consumers.

Councilman Ben Gordon explained he wished to delay the vote so councilmen would have an opportunity to talk over the new rates with residents and get their opinions.

The rate Circleville residents are now paying is $1 for the first 500 cubic feet and 60¢ per thousand thereafter.

The new rate, councilmen said, is the lowest offered the city in 10 years.

The rate schedule in the first ordinance presented council follows:

20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet.

6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 4,500 cubic feet.

5 1/2 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet.

5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 10,000 cubic feet.

This rate is the same as the present rate Circleville consumers are paying up to 5,000 cubic feet of gas. Consumers who use from 5,000 to 10,000 cubic feet of gas would save 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet under the schedule.

Those who use in excess of 10,000 cubic feet would save 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.
